DeMarcus Cousins (@boogiecousins) on getting the two technicals/ejection Monday against Dallas: "You know my thoughts. I don't have to say anything. Obviously I don't want to say too much because the League is looking to keep taking money...It is what is. I'll do better." pic.twitter.com/eLTWPesZM4 Denver Nuggets

Mullin went on to elaborate that Wiseman "is so coachable, and not only just coachable, he can make the adjustments and do it the next play."

"Suddenly, that didn't seem quite as important when I turned the TV on as shoot-around was beginning," Kerr said.

Aside from the mid-post scoring, he's also adept working in the post. He has a refined a strength-based low-block game, which prevents opponents from pinning him with smaller assignments in a way they could against someone like Ben Simmons, who's yet to develop a bullying and skilled back-to-the-basket game. Cunningham's interior touch and physical disposition distinguish him from the Sixers' All-NBA guard and incorporate another layer into his versatile offense. San Antonio Spurs

"The Bucks organization remains firmly against excessive use of force by law enforcement," the team said. "This past year shed light on the ongoing racial injustices facing our African American and other marginalized communities. Reoccurring instances of excessive use of force and immediate escalation when engaging the Black community must stop. We will continue to work to enact policy change so these incidents no longer exist. As an organization, we remain strongly committed to address issues of social injustice and anti-racism and to make meaningful change for African Americans and all marginalized members of our community."

As the NBA tries to hold a season outside a bubble during the coronavirus pandemic, team health officials and others filling protocol roles are essentially the NBA's front-line workers. Roles that have been largely delegated to team health officials, as outlined in the NBA's 158-page protocols, include testing officer, contact tracing officer, facemask enforcement officer, facility hygiene officer, health education and awareness officer and travel safety officer, among others. Some team health officials hold more than one of those roles, along with their original roles. New Orleans Pelicans
